Travel disruptions happen—it's what you do next that matters

Business travel doesn't always go to plan. Flights get cancelled. Meetings run late. A hotel loses a reservation. Right now, when something goes wrong, your team is stuck:

- Sitting on hold with airlines or hotels, hoping for a quick fix
- Trying to rebook something last-minute, often at a higher cost
- Scrambling to find the best option without knowing all the choices
- Losing time they should be spending on their actual job

That's where Corporate Traveller's 24/7 support team comes in.

We don't just answer the phone—we fix the problem before it derails your business.

What Corporate Traveller's 24/7 support means for you

- Immediate, reliable help, no matter when or where
No more long hold times or waiting for a travel agent to open. Our in-house team is always available, ready to step in when things don't go as planned.
- People who know your business, not just travel
You won't be passed to a random call centre. Our team knows your company policies, preferences, and booking history, so we can sort out changes without back-and-forth confusion.
- Decisions made with cost and convenience in mind
Last-minute fixes don't have to mean last-minute pricing. We find solutions that work within your policy while minimising unnecessary spend.
- Consistency that self-booking can't match
Every traveller gets the same level of service, whether they're flying across the country or across the world.

How this looks in real life

Without Corporate Traveller

- Your employee's flight gets cancelled at 9 PM. They start calling airlines, looking at options, and trying to find a new flight on their phone. They finally rebook—at a higher cost—an hour later.
- They check into a hotel after midnight only to find their reservation was lost. They have to sort it out themselves or find a new place to stay.
- They need to extend their trip, but the hotel's website says no availability. They call and wait on hold, only to find out later that the hotel did have rooms—but at a different rate.

With Corporate Traveller

- A cancelled flight? Our team has already found alternatives before they even call.
- A missing hotel reservation? We handle it and get them checked in stress-free.
- Need to extend a trip? We sort it out in minutes and make sure the rate is right.
